Music has always been an integral part of Geoff's life. Born in New York, he grew up around the world (France, Switzerland, Venezuela, Liberia), taking music lessons, playing guitar and bass, and writing his own songs since middle school. He returned to the United States to go to college and then spent some years in NYC pursuing a music career. He took a break to marry and raise a family, moving to Pennsylvania and working in IT. He came to Austin a few years ago and started playing bass and doing vocals with some local bands, going back to his first love: music.

The need to express himself through his own songs, kept in the back burner for some time, is an important part of his life. His lyrics come from within. They talk about life and relationships seen through his own experiences. A mix of jazz and pop, his songs are more mature now, emotionally and musically. Texas Psychedelic, his first EP, is a compilation of some of these songs and shows this new sensibility he had acquired with age and that will continue to influence his work.

Texas Psychedelic was released in February of 2021. The title song was featured as Song of the Day by KUTX 98.9 in Austin and was played in over 67 radio college stations around the country.

“A solid mix of jazz, rock, pop and some dazzling psychedelic tones, the new five-track Texas Psychedelic from Geoff Bradford is full of twists and turns that audiophiles of any genre should feel excited about.” — Colin Jordan

“Faithful to its name, Texas Psychedelic totes the pop idiosyncrasies of the Lone Star State while dipping listeners into acid-soaked aesthetics.” — KUTX 98.9

“If you’re like me and sometimes get in a music rut, throw Texas Psychedelic in your player and get a refreshing blast of something different.” — Shawn Underwood, Twangville

“Texas Psychedelic ... its sophisticated blend of jazz and pop is indeed very colorful.” — P.B., Austin American-Statesman

“Bradford’s personality and creativity is on full display. [...] gives Austin a fresh taste of relaxation and energy with his beautiful and dynamic, new EP Texas Psychedelic.” — Eric Haney, The Deli
